SELF DENIAL
APPEAL 2018

Welcome to Worship

It is lovely to have you join us today as we continue our Self Denial Series, "We rise as one." The weekly focus upon the Salvation Army ministry in other countries is inspiring, encouraging and challenging. To see the amazing work being done lifts my spirit. To know that my financial gift is helping to make such a difference is encouraging. To see such need in places of poverty and difficulty is personally challenging in how I could partner and participate. Next Sunday is our Altar Service. A special time of giving a financial gift that goes to the type of works that we have been learning about these last few weeks. The challenge for Salvationist, and even in the countries we have learnt about and who live with so little, the challenge has always been to give one weeks salary on missionary service. It's a sacrificial gift but as we have seen, it can change not only a life, but potentially a whole community. Envelopes for your giving are available and you can give electronically or by card. Together we can rise as one and impact our world with the grace and love of God.

Self Denial Altar Service 6th May Leaving a Legacy

While chatting over coffee this week I enjoyed a conversation on the positive impact of older generations speaking into younger people. My companion shared the influence upon his children and I reflected on some older men who impacted my own life while I was just a teenager. Every Sunday these men would make a point to welcome me to worship, inquire of activities, and speak faith and hope into my circumstances. It just so happens that these men were high achieving Officers but their legacy was not in the programs they had initiated but in the person they were to me. This pastoral coffee was a God moment to remember the encouragement and challenge given by Steph last Sunday to do 3 simple things with the young people in our corps:

1. Never let them feel they are alone
2. Invest in them in small ways
3. Show Jesus to them

Long after they have gone I can still tell you the names of the older men in my corps who did this for me. They took an interest, gave encouragement, spoke faith and hope and let me see Jesus in the way they lived and acted. The years may have passed but their legacy lives on and I'm now trying to leave a similar mark on the young people around me. If we who are older will serve God in this way then the legacy of faith and Salvationism will be strong and long. Will you do it?

2018 PROJECT WALKTHON

1.30pm Sat 12 May 2018
Wynnum Waterfront
Walking Path

Children account for 28 per cent of trafficking victims worldwide and 64 per cent of trafficking victims in Sub-Saharan Africa.

You can help end this cruel trade.

The Salvation Army Women's Ministries is supporting the Simba project in Kenya, which aims to teach people across the east African country how to recognize, prevent and report trafficking. You can help by being a walker or a sponsor. We will walk along the beautiful Wynnum waterfront while raising money for The Simba Project and finish with a BBQ after the walk. Sponsor forms are in the foyer. Please register by 6 May with Susan or the office.
